1. Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 3-12, 14-22, 24 and 26-29 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Judd et al. (U.S 6360215) (Judd) in view of Snyder (U.S 6643641).

Regarding claims 1, 11, 12, 22, 24, 26-29, Judd discloses: A method, a system and a product in a data processing system for searching for information, the method comprising:

Art Unit: 2171

responsive to receiving an input string, parsing the input string for a universal resource identifier and a search string (col. 9, lines 1-20, Judd), wherein the universal resource identifier and the search string are separated from each other in the input string by a selected delimiter (col. 9, lines 21-35, Judd); searching for the information corresponding to the search string through a Web page identified by the universal resource identifier (col. 9, lines 1-20, Judd).

However, Judd didn't disclose: wherein the searching step comprises: locating a searching object on the Web page; and using the search object for the information. On the other hand, Snyder discloses: wherein the searching step comprises: locating a searching object on the Web page (col. 10, lines 39-67, Snyder); and using the search object to search for the information (col. 13, lines 31-61, Snyder). Thus, at the time invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to include locating a searching object on the Web page for searching information in the system of Judd as taught by Snyder. The motivation being to enable the search engines can load and review the data file which contain hypertext markup language (html) text, comments or tags, formatting commands, and links addressing other files. The data may contain text, media, scripts, programs, etc., and may be addressable at the same network address or a different address (col. 7, lines 35-44, Snyder).

In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: initiating a searching for a search object and search object wherein the search is based on the search string (col. 10, lines 39-67, Snyder). Thus, at the time invention was made, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art to include the step of initiating in the system of Judd as taught by Snyder. The motivation being to enable the users type or select the various values base on the menu to provide the search quickly.

Judd/Snyder discloses: a bus system (602, fig. 6 and corresponding text, Judd);

A communications unit connected to the bus system (618, fig. 6 and corresponding text, Judd);

A memory connected to the bus system (606, fig. 6 and corresponding text, Judd), wherein the memory includes as set of instructions (col. 18, lines 13-27, Judd);

A processing unit connect to the bus system (604, fig. 6 and corresponding text, Judd).

Regarding claims 3 and 14, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the searching step comprises: searching the Web page for information corresponding to the search string (col. 9, lines 1-20, Judd).

Regarding claims 4 and 15, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the searching step further comprises: searching Web pages identified by any universal resource identifiers found on the Web page (col. 10, lines 6-18, Judd).

Regarding claims 5 and 16, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the universal resource identifier is a universal resource locator (col. 9, lines 40-44, Judd).

Regarding claims 6 and 17, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the method is implemented in a Web browser on the data processing system (col. 8, lines 21-39, Judd).

Regarding claims 7 and 18, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the method is implemented in a program located on the data processing system (col. 7, lines 41-50, Judd).

Regarding claims 8 and 19 most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: presenting results of the search (col. 12, lines 1-28, Judd).

Regarding claims 9 and 20, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 7 and 19 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the results are presented as a set of universal resource identifiers (col. 9, lines 21-35, Judd), wherein each universal resource identifier within the set of universal identifiers locators may be selected to retrieve an associated Web page (col. 9, lines 40-67, Judd).

Regarding claims 10 and 21, most of the limitations of these claims have been noted in the rejection of claims 1 and 12 above, respectively. In addition, Judd/Snyder discloses: wherein the selected delimiter is at least one of a "$", "o", "*", and "#" (col. 10, lines 60 to col. 11, lines 61, Judd).
